BAWNMORE A HOODOO?

W. R. Grace & Co.'s Ship Again Reported Ashore Near Bandon, Ore.

THIRTY PEOPLE IN DANGER

The Vessel Breaking Up and Life-Savers Have Been Sent to the Rescue.

SHE'S A CRAFT OF MISFORTUNE.

Dynamite Twice Placed in Her Hold to Wreck Her; Ran Ashore in 1893 at Point Corda.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Aug. 29. - The steamship Bawnmore went ashore in the fog near Bandon, Oregon, yesterday morning. There is no telegraph line to Bandon and particulars of the wreck have not yet been received. Capt. Scott, of the Life-Saving Service, has gone to the scene and is now upon the ground with his crew.

cisco for the first time Jan. 3, 1898. Boon HE WAS AFTER PANTS after that Capt. Woodside was involved in labor troubles. At Nanadimo the sallors tried to kidnap some of the Bawnmore's men. Capt. Woodside went of the leaders in prison.

In June, of that year, thirty pounds, of dynamite in a value was found in the Bawnmore's hold. A cocked revolver had been set so that the rolling of the vessel was apt to discharge it and with it the dynamite. Scarcely had the Bawnmore escaped this plot than more dynamite was placed in her hold. This second batch was discovered while the steamer was at Nananimo and was turned over to the British Co lumbia authorities. Saturday, the eight of the following July, the Bawnmore went on the rocks in a fog, precisely as she did this time. She struck near Point Corda on the Mendocino coast and came near sinking.

W. R. Grace & Co., of I Hanover Square, received a despatch to-day briefly announcing that the Bawmmore had gone aground on the Oregon coast, twelve miles south of Coos Bay.

They hope for further details of her grounding and think it possible that she has not been hadly damaged and that she may be safely pulled off into deep water.

that she may be safely pulled on into deep water.

The vicinity of Coos Bay, where the Bawnmore is reported grounded, is said to be a most dangerous locality on ac-count of innumerable rocks which stud the coast.

It is reported by a mail carrier that one Japanese sailor was washed ashore badly injured. When the mail carrier thirty people on the steamer's deck. He also says she is breaking up and will be a total loss.

The Bawnmore is a large steamer owned by W. R. Grace & Co., of New York. She had been engaged in bringing petroleum from Peru and was recently fitted up for that purpose.

The Bawnmore left San Francisco two weeks ago with a tremendous deckload.

went into the Mayor's office at 5.30 o'clock this morning and opened the hutters. As he went out he locked was considerably surprised at 6.10 when he re-entered the room to see a specimen of the genus "Weary Willie" calmly walking about the room with his hands in his pockets. When Larkin recovered from his surprise he gasped:
"Who are you, anyway?"

"Andrew Bradley, from Brooklyn," was the response, with a deprecatory wave of the hand.

"Well, how did you get in here?"
"Why, like any man in a hurry would.
I just jumped on the railing, then to the ledge, opened the window and jumped in. You have nice quarters contly fitted up for that purpose.

The Bawnmore left San Francisco two weeks ago with a tremendous deckload. It was generally stated on the water front that with such a heavy weight so far from her keel, she could not be safely handled in a storm. She went to Portland with oil, after which she went to Comox for coal, leaving that port Bunday for Peru.

Capt. Alexander Woodside said the day before starting north that the deck load on his vessel would not bother him in the least, as he could put six hundred tons of water ballast into the tanks in her hold if it was necessary to steady

The Bawnmore has had a sensational history since she came to this country. The steamer was built in 1889 at Dumbarton, and went into the freighting business between Liverpool and the River Platte. She came to the Pacific coast under charter to carry coal for John Rosenfeld & Sons, and went to Nananimo.

The steamer arrived from San France Country, on Monday night.

"The World's "proposition has met with a hearty response from its readers in Brooklyn. On the day the first story was printed subscriptions began to pour in from those anxious to add their mite to carry out this patriotic jurpose. Today the fund subscribed by the readers of "The World" has reached a total of nearly $1,000, while several hundred dollars more have been pledged.

This money will be turned over to the Mayor's committee as soon as that bedy organizes and chooses a treasurer. The committee will meet in the Mayor's office next Monday morning.
